

The Concord Review Academic Coaching Service

Training Young Minds to Compete

The Concord Review Academic Coaching Service provides individual, online coaching for high school students interested in going above and beyond their schools' academic expectations.

Our academic coaches are primarily former Concord Review authors who now attend or have graduated from highly competitive, selective colleges. Our senior coaches have studied at the graduate level.

Our academic coaches specialize in nonfiction academic writing, an important skill for students in any field and a skill that many research journals, contests, summer programs, and advanced courses require. Forty-two percent of past Concord Review authors have attended Ivy League colleges.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN OR HAVE QUESTIONS
ABOUT THE CONCORD
REVIEW ACADEMIC COACHING SERVICE,
PLEASE EMAIL JESSICA LI AT JESSICA@TCR.ORG OR WILL FITZHUGH
AT FITZHUGH@TCR.ORG.

The Concord Review Academic Coaching Service was founded by Will Fitzhugh, founder and editor of The Concord Review, which since 1987 has remained the only quarterly journal to publish the academic history papers of high school students.

Visit <http://www.tcr.org>

Varsity
Academics